CALL FOR PAPERS

WORKSHOP

“EAST-WEST MIGRATION IN THE EUROPEAN UNION”

30 March – 1 April 2016, Brasov, Romania

The Workshop is open to the international participation of all teachers, researchers and PhD students interested in the main topic and other related topics. The Workshop is dedicated to the delicate problem of migration from Eastern Europe to the Western EU countries.

The contributions will cover the following interest areas:

- Economic, political and social reasons of East-West migration;
- Estimates of the current and anticipated immigration flows;
- Migration as a cross-border commute or a permanent settlement;
- East-West migration and the implications of presumably cheap labour;
- Educational migration derived from under-funding of academic scientists;
- Impact of the global financial crisis on the migration from Eastern Europe to the Western EU countries;
- East-West migration: an obstacle on the road to European integration or an opportunity to deeper integration?

Migration is a very sensitive political issue in the EU and it is vital to ensure that all European citizens are granted the same rights and responsibilities. While the free movement of workers is a milestone for EU integration, economic development and social cohesion, the Workshop intends to debate some specific issues of the East-West migration inside the EU. The discussants will explore the profile of Eastern European emigrants and their occupations in the host countries, linked to potential disturbances of Western national labor markets, the demographic effects of migratory flows and the problem of ageing populations, as well as the labour restrictions on Bulgarian and Romanian nationals, including work permits.
